CRG, HAUGER LEADING THE OK PROVISIONAL CLASSIFICATION IN LE MANS

Dennis Hauger confirmed to be the quickest in OK's heats after the pole position. Callum Bradshaw also strong. Flavio Camponeschi getting some ground back. The closing heats of OK-Junior and KZ2 on Sunday morning ahead of the Finals to be held on July 2nd from local 14:15.

Light rain showers fallen on and off made things a bit trickier in Le Mans during the qualifying heats at the fourth round of the OK and OK-Junior CIK-FIA European Championships held on Saturday (third round after Sarno and Oviedo) and KZ2 (second round after Genk).

Among CRG drivers, the Norwegian Dennis Hauger (CRG-Parilla) has been excellent in OK during the heats on Saturday, getting the most of the pole position secured on Friday. In the three heats run today Hauger claimed two wins and a second place behind team mate Callum Bradshaw. These results gave him the provisional classification lead. Bradshaw won one heat but sustained an incident later on, which hampered his provisional classification (13th).

Heats will continue on Sunday morning from local 10:00 for all categories, including OK-Junior and KZ2. Finals will get underway from 14:15 with Live Streaming.

Flavio Camponeschi is slightly behind in OK (17th), but the good news is that he is recovering. The other provisional positions see Hannes Janker 20th, Kilian Meyer 25th and Michael Rosina 44th.
